March LifeCare Campus to House Onsite Child Care Center

July 20, 2010, Riverside, CA. March LifeCare, America's first "health and wellness" city, will house an onsite child care center for workers. The center will be developed and managed by Amy S. Harrison, CEO, Altus--Innovative Solutions for Youth, Inc. and Former Chair of the UCR Foundation Board of Trustees.

Says Harrison, "Innovative Solutions for Youth Inc. DBA the ALTUS schools would be providing enriched preschool and childcare programs for children and adolescents. Our hope is to develop programs with an emphasis on learning and achievement, the arts, music, athletics, after school socialization clubs to children whose parents are employed at the March LifeCare campus."

The center will assist parents who work close by and encourage them to participate in their child's education. School programs and/or supervision would be developed to mirror parent working schedules so that families could leave home together and return home together with emphasis on maximum family interaction and supervision.

Don Ecker, managing director of March Healthcare Development said, "I have known Amy for more than 25 years and had the pleasure of watching her develop and eventually take public Children's Comprehensive Services, Inc, a company that focused on specialized services for challenged youth throughout the United States. I cannot think of a better person to bring into existence the March LifeCare child care center."

The March LifeCare Health and Wellness City, over 200 acres, is being developed by March Healthcare Development on the former March Air Force Base in Riverside County, California.
